

Laboratory of Drosophila Research
The Chinese University of Hong Kong
5th Anniversary 2002-2007

There is a saying that “managers do things right but leaders do right things”. It is always my hope that LDRians would not just do the experiments right but develop a sense to judge what is the right experiment to do.

As head of LDR, I always try to my very best to help LDRians to achieve their own goals either in science or in other areas. It is my belief that LDR shouldn't be a place to create followers but should be where future leaders (both scientific leaders and leaders of our community) is nurtured. I am so glad to see some of the former members are working hard toward their goals both in Hong Kong and overseas.

I truly hope that their experiences will influence new generations of LDRians so this good culture can be perpetuated.

I would like to thank Christine, Michelle, Leung and many others for all their kind help to set up the LDR in 2002; and all the subsequent LDRians for their contributions to let LDR “flies off”.

By Prof. Edwin Chan