

Laboratory of Drosophila Research
The Chinese University of Hong Kong
5th Anniversary 2002-2007

My time in LDR

Hi, I am Jessica. I am now studying Ph.D in the University of Cambridge. I studied my M. Phil in LDR from 2003-2005.

I am grateful and proud that I can be one of the LDRians. For me, the two years slipped by quite swiftly, yet I enjoyed my time in LDR.

Under the guidance of Prof. Chan, I got the chance to equip myself with both experimental techniques and intellectual thinking. Besides, I also learned how to develop ideas and plan experiments independently during my study in LDR. LDR provided an excellent atmosphere for my M.Phil training and also further provoked my interest in the scientific research, which led my way to the PhD now. Besides the academic aspect, I also missed the social time with the LDRians. We had quite a lot of gatherings in which we had built a bonding and relationship with each other. I won't forget those cheerful moments with the LDRians. Looking back for those days in LDR, it was just like my honey-moon with lots of sweet memory.

Here, I want to especially express my heart-felt thanks to Prof. Chan who had given me lots of guidance and support both for my study and future pursuit. I also thank all the LDRians who had worked with me and shared with me in those two years. I will miss you, LDR.

By Jessica Lam